MORE TROOPS SENT TO MEXICAN BORDER

Another Band of Mexican Bandits Reported as Killing Americans in Western Part of Cameron County

(Special to The Herald)
Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 4.—Nine more of the Mexican bandits operating around San Benito have been killed by American forces during the last 24 hours, according to reports reaching here today, but another band has appeared in the western part of Cameron county, killing an American and attacking ranch houses. Additional American troops are proceeding to the border today. Six companies of the 19th Infantry are on their way to Port San Houston where they will be available for an emergency. All of the 4th Infantry is expected to reach there Monday.

Hagen Monday and the 6th Cavalry will soon be on the border in accordance with orders transmitted from Washington.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Good music and part singing will be a feature of the meetings at the Salvation Army this week-end. Bandmaster Malpass of Boston assisted by his family, and also Captain F. Malpass and his wife will take part. Meetings at 2.15 and 7.30 p. m., Sunday. Special open air meetings tonight at 7.30.

DANIELS WILL ADVOCATE MORE BATTLESHIPS

Naval Program Also Includes a Flotilla of Scout Crafts.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Sept. 4.—Secretary Daniels' naval program will include at least four battleships or battle cruisers as well as a flotilla of scout crafts and submarines. The secretary has returned to Washington to make a fight for an increased navy all along the line.
"I have never advocated that we stop building battleships," he said today. "I have hope to secure expert advisers to make the navy what it must be in the future to stand upon an equality with the most efficient."

GOVERNMENT TO INVESTIGATE

Report that Ten Submarines Built in This Country Are Being Used by British.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Sept. 4.—The United States government is going to investigate the report that ten submarines built in this country since the war began, crossed the Atlantic and are now units in the British navy. "This became known here today on reliable authority. No official would discuss the matter but it was learned that the story is given credit. If the submarines are now in use in the British navy an agreement entered into by Charles M. Schwab with William J. Bryan when the latter was secretary of state has been violated. This government would regard such a move as a distinct violation of neutrality and it is reliably reported that immediate action will be taken if the story is true.

CONCESSIONS WILL NOT BE LONG DELAYED

Both England and France Desirous of Reducing the Friction Resulting from the Protest of American Importers

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Sept. 4.—Despite the definite decision in Paris and London that no concessions are to be made to the American demands that interference with trade between neutrals shall stop, administration officials were extremely confident today that the announcement of material concessions by the allies will not long be delayed. It is because positive information to that effect has reached Secretary Lansing, that the British note of protest is still held up. Immediately upon its becoming known abroad that Germany had determined on concessions to restore good feeling with the United States, the British and French foreign offices got into touch. Their plans, which it is estimated, have become more definite.

It is admitted at the British embassy here include just how the present regulations are to be changed so that German purchased goods shall be left through to the United States are now nearing completion. An official announcement is expected from London within 72 hours according to the British embassy. The question of concessions on goods going from this country to Germany and Austria or adjoining countries has not been considered. That it is understood will be left to direct diplomatic negotiations but both England and France are desirous it is explained of reducing the friction resulting from the protest of American importers that they are being ruined while millions of dollars worth of goods already paid for are held in warehouses in Rotterdam.

KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Aged Lewiston Man Run Down and Dies From Injuries.

(Special to The Herald)
Lewiston, Me., Sept. 4.—Charles O. Libby, aged 60, died in a hospital here today of a fractured skull. He was struck by a public automobile last night.
The auto was owned and driven by Stellas Manolas of Auburn who was carrying passengers from the upper depot of the Maine Central. The accident happened shortly after six o'clock within sight of scores returning to their homes from work.
An examination showed that Mr. Libby's most serious injury was a fracture on the left side of the head, resulting in a concussion of the brain.

DEMANDS EXPLANATION FROM U. S.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Sept. 4.—Haiti, through Solon Menos, its minister to the United States is going to demand an explanation of this country for the occupation of Haitian customs houses by United States marines. Minister Menos today said that he is going to seek a conference with Secretary of State Lansing this afternoon at which time he will take up the matter. The minister asserted that no formal protest would be made, but his government would seek informal reparation. The Haitian government believes that the United States marines should be withdrawn from the customs houses.
Minister Menos said: "I have received some suggestions from my government to offer Secretary Lansing."

Read the story of "Neal of the Navy" on page three, and see the photo pictures at the Portsmouth Theatre, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

I cannot discuss them until after my conference with him."

INTERESTING WEEK AT GREEN ACRE

Mr. E. Stagg Whitin Speaks on Prison Reform.

The closing week of the conference at Green Acre for the season of 1915 has been a remarkable one in many ways. The topics under discussion have been of the utmost interest to all, yet apparently widely different. Last Saturday afternoon Mr. E. Stagg Whitin, a co-worker with Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne, warden at Sing Sing prison, spoke on prison reform and the great work to be done there. His talk was entitled "Penal Servitude the Last Vestige of Legalized Slavery." He spoke most feelingly of the incidents which had first led him to undertake this line of humanitarian work. His great plan is to train and educate those whom we have termed "the convicts," not to despise them and cast them aside. He feels strongly that by training them they can become useful members of society instead of being a menace to themselves and others. They are as children who need special attention. We do not despise or hate a child because he is a child. Neither should we hate and despise those who are childlike in their responsibility to each other. Mr. Whitin feels that now is the time to undertake great things in this line, because the hearts of all are more tender towards those who are trying to assist the prisoners to make better citizens of themselves. Among other things he is endeavoring to inaugurate a system whereby those men who do work in the prisons may receive some pay so that their families may be taken care of while they are going through a course in training, and that the men should be looked out for when they leave the prison. Splendid work is being done along various lines at present in Sing Sing prison, and recently when there was a feeling that Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne was to be removed from his present position, fifty prominent men arose and demanded that he be retained, and in a single day the whole tide of affairs turned.

On Saturday evening there was a delightful costume dance. The dresses were varied and interesting. The first prize was won by Miss Gladys Ashraf of Tehran, Persia, dressed as Sunshine. Master Richard Potter of Cleveland won the gentleman's first prize. He was dressed as a newsboy.

The devotional on Sunday morning was conducted by Rev. Howard C. Ives of New York. His subject was "The Love of God." Every heart was touched by his stirring words and beautiful spirit as he spoke of three of the steps in the path, humility, sacrifice and severance. In the afternoon Miss Deborah Kallen, of the Boston Art Museum spoke on "The Teaching of Art to Children." She had an exhibition of the work done by representative children trained by this new method, from the ages of three and a half to fourteen. The work is of exceptional quality. The basis of the work is design, and a true sense of proportions—harmony, balance and rhythm. Miss Kallen started this course through the courtesy of the Art Museum three years ago, and although her class consisted of ten pupils at the beginning, she now has more pupils than she can take care of, and there is a constant demand upon her time in other cities. The system is proving to be of great assistance in the ethical training of the children as well as the artistic side of their natures and different cities throughout the east and the middle west are asking Miss Kallen to give courses of lectures and exhibitions in order that they may open similar classes.

Monday afternoon Rev. Howard C. Ives spoke on "The World of Humanity, Its Common Home, Origin and Destiny," pointing out the scientific truths regarding the oneness of the world, and carrying this on through the realm of humanity. On Tuesday he spoke on "Prejudice, Its Cause, Effect and Cure."

On Tuesday afternoon was given a delightful Children's Party the local and visiting children giving the entire entertainment. They had been trained by Miss Marion E. Jack of Montreal, Canada, and the hostesses were Madam Amanda T. Boucher of Woonsocket and Mrs. Florence Kressler Griswold of New York.

In the evening there was a happy gathering at the Birenon where a concert took place around the big fireplace, accompanied by the usual songs and dancing.

Mrs. Robert Seymour spoke Thursday afternoon on "Community Training as a Substitute for War." This was viewed from the standpoint of drama and art, and was given especially to follow Miss Kallen's address of Sunday afternoon.

On Friday Mrs. Marian Foster Ober of Dublin, N. H., spoke on the Panama-Pacific Exposition, giving her impressions of what this magnificent gathering of the nations stands for in this age.

The unique feature of this season will take place on this Saturday when a festival will be held on the Green Acre grounds. Mr. Carl Buer and his orchestra, part of the Symphony orchestra, will give a concert during the afternoon. In the evening Miss Alice Martin, assisted by her pupils, will give an exhibition of English folk dances on the lawn under the big arbor. This will be followed by a costume ball in the Birenon. The "Big Tent," a well known landmark, is again on the grounds, and under its cover tea will be served while music is playing.

CITY OF MANCHESTER IN BIG DAMAGE SUIT

Notice of a suit against the city of Manchester for $10,000 by J. D. McGriff and Son, automobile repairers, was given Friday morning to City Clerk Arthur W. Phinney, in the form of a writ served by Deputy Sheriff Edmund Edgert. The writ is returnable in the September term of court, which opens Tuesday, Sept. 21, in Nashua.

The company alleges that damage to the sum mentioned was done to its property on Malvern street, near the corner of Bridge street, by a change in the grade of the street and a defective culvert which allowed water to flood the cellar and injure personal and other property. Gross negligence on the part of the city in maintaining the culvert when it was known, and notice had been given by the firm, that the culvert was defective, is claimed. The damage is alleged to have been caused April 1, 1912.

Mayor Spaulding would make no comment on the case this morning. The firm is represented by O'Connor & O'Connor. Its two buildings used for automobile repairing are situated on Malvern street and are wooden buildings. The firm manufactured carriages of various kinds for many years.

PORTSMOUTH GOLFERS LEAVE CITY TODAY

The 1915 New Hampshire State Golf Championship tournament opens Monday and it is expected that it will be the biggest ever held. The list of entries are ahead of those of any other year up to date. Several golfers from this city will leave for Bethlehem today and will play a few rounds this afternoon to get familiar with the course. Among those from this city who will play for the cup are Clifford W. Hase, the present holder of the cup, and little Richard D. McDonough, Jackson M. Washburn, Edmund C. T. Bell, J. F. Pickering, Thomas F. Managan, J. Harold Hobbs, Dr. J. D. Carty and others.

Twenty golfers from Manchester left for the North country yesterday, and more are leaving this morning. The men in Manchester who are thought to know the game pretty well, and banking on one of their thirty representatives to take the cup away from Mr. Hase, but he has been playing in fine form lately and his game today is better than it was. In the invitation tournament for the Farragut cup when he was defeated in the final by an inferior golfer after he had eliminated some of the best men in the country, including Jesse Clifford, formerly of Manchester, and Murray Purvis of Massachusetts, Clifford, among the best in this part of the country, is ineligible this year, as he is registered from Massachusetts.

Among the Manchester men who will compete are Walter M. Africa, Jr., Dr. P. S. Serlin, A. B. Jenks, Dr. G. Maurice Watson, John Marshall, Howard Russell, L. M. Dowling, Hubert N. Bond, Harvey E. Shotton, Louis M. Wyman, Leslie M. Polson, Harry E. Boyce, "Jack" Parker, George E. McClintock, J. M. Mooney, Norwin S. Bean, Col. John A. Sheehan and probably several others.

The city of Nashua will be represented by a dozen or more good men who are looked to as possible winners in the tourney. There are eight or ten going from Rochester and the up-state country is very well represented.

The tournament opens Monday morning with eighteen holes, medal play, the first sixteen men playing match-play. In the afternoon, The match will be all over Tuesday afternoon, and it is hoped that if it isn't Mr. Hase, some of the Portsmouth men will play well enough to keep the cup here for another year. Good luck to them.

BIG GALLIC FOOTBALL GAME

There is great enthusiasm among the lovers of Gaelic football over the match contest to be played at Rand's Grove, Labor Day, under the auspices of Division 2, A. O. U.

The game will bring together the Young Emmets, local favorites, and the strong Celtic team of Haverhill, Mass. These teams have never met before. Both teams will have their strongest men in line and an exceptionally fast and interesting game is predicted. The Haverhill team claim the championship of New England, having met and defeated Worcester, Lawrence, Lowell, Framingham and also the big four county teams of Boston. They also defeated the strong Cambridge team known as the young Ireland's. The young Ireland's were the undisputed champions of New England having met and defeated all comers for a number of years. However if they win from the local boys they will have to travel. The young Emmets have been in practice during the past two months. Captain's Duffy and Manager Hussey have not left anything undone to get together the best material available and to develop a team that will give a good account of themselves. A great game is looked for as a purse of $100.00 and the championship of New England is at stake.

WIRELESS ROBS NAVAL OFFICERS OF INITIATIVE

COMMANDERS ABROAD MUST GET DIRECTIONS FROM WASHINGTON.

The wireless has taken away from commanding officers of United States fleets much of the initiative that made famous such men as Dewey and Farragut. No longer is the admiral possessor of full authority in dealing with sudden crises that arise in foreign ports unless it is necessary to save life.

The following dispatch was recently sent by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to all commanding officers of the navy:

"By direction of the president, the following changes in navy regulations become effective immediately: Article 1648.—Due to the ease with which the navy department can be communicated with from all parts of the world, no commander-in-chief, divisional commander, or commanding officer, shall issue an ultimatum to the representative of any foreign government or demand the performance of any service from any such representative that must be executed within a limited time without first communicating with the navy department, except in case where such action is necessary to save life."

NOTED STAFF BANDMASTER TO VISIT PORTSMOUTH

This week-end Ensign T. W. Malpass, leader of the Annet Salvation Army band in New England, of the Boston headquarters, will have charge of the week-end meetings at the local corps on State street.

The Ensign is a fine cornetist and a composer of music, one of his marches taking fourth place in an international contest recently held in London.

He will be assisted by his wife and two sons who are both capable musicians, and a musical treat will be enjoyed by all who are fortunate to hear them this visit.

Labor Day at 8 p. m. Captain Beech has arranged for a grand musical entertainment in the hall, when Captain Fred Malpass, brother of the Ensign, will be present with his wife also, and a fine program will be rendered, consisting of marches, duets, solos etc. Captain Beech will recite one of R. J. Sims' poems, "The Signman's Story." There will be a silver collection at the door for this entertainment. Don't fail to hear these six musical marvels.

PORTSMOUTH ALL STAKES TO MEET SOMERSWORTH

Helen Cragen is taking his All Star team up to Somersworth this afternoon to stack up against a hard proposition in a game that should be a fast one. If they give as good an account of themselves as they did last Saturday in Rochester and have an even break of luck they should come away from the town pretty well thought of. The game is scheduled for 3:00 o'clock and Spike Jordan will probably do the box work for the local boys.

FIRST INSTALLMENT PROLOGUE—THE SURVIVORS

CHAPTER I

The Red Death.
Capt. John Hardin of the Princess regarded the fast-receding coast line with unusual alarm. He shouted to his mate.

"Welcher," he cried, pointing aft, "look at that. I've never seen old Peloe act that way before."

Welcher, the mate, a surly, sallow-faced, ill-conditioned fellow in unkempt uniform, followed with his eyes the captain's glance.

"Gee whiz," he said, "no nether."

"Ben," exclaimed the captain, "she's spitting fire. By Godfrey, that means death—death, I tell you, death."

This was back in 1902. The Princess, Captain Hardin's boat, was a tramp steamer bound to New York from the city of St. Pierre, in the island of Martinique, with a cargo of cocoa, coffee, sugar cane and cotton, and had been under way probably an hour.

"You're right, captain," he returned. "Peloe means business this trip. Death is right."

A feminine figure emerged from the shadow of the afterhouse and rushed forward toward the bridge. Behind her, following in her wake, raced two sturdy youngsters. One of these youngsters darted past her, swarmed upon the bridge and confronted the captain and his mate.

He was Captain Hardin's boy, Neal—the only child.

The other boy was the mate's son, young Joey Welcher, sallow-faced and disagreeable like his father.

With the roar of a thousand thunder Peloe bellowed forth.

"What are we going to do, Jack?" cried the captain's young wife; "what are we going to do?"

"Do?" returned the mate, before the captain could reply. "Put on more steam; that's what we'll do. We're well out of that hell-hole yonder. An hour and we'd have been in the thick of it. We're well out of it, I tell you."

Captain Hardin applied his eye to his telescope once more. The boy upon his shoulder followed suit.

"Welcher," said the captain bravely, "we've got to go back."

CHAPTER II

The Lost Isle.

On the same day—the day of the red death at Martinique—and but two short hours before the pilot put the helm of the tramp steamer Princess hard-a-port, three men sat on the veranda of a low-roofed, white-walled bungalow in St. Pierre.

One of these men was Ilington, a young American. He passed around a box of fragrant Martinique cheroots. He folded up some half-dozen slips of paper he had been examining and returned them to another individual who faced him from across the table.

"Senor Hernandez," exclaimed the young American, "for a week at least—half a hundred times—I have told you your credentials were satisfactory to me."

Hernandez nodded gravely. He thrust the papers back into a pocket and tapped them significantly.

"None could be better," he exclaimed grandiloquently, "I am Hernandez—that is all sufficient."

Suddenly the American turned and faced the third member of the coterie.

"And what," he exclaimed, "what of Ponto here?"

This third individual was the strangest creature of them all. He was a Mexican; dark, very dark; low-browed; low-statured—and fat.

Hernandez nodded significantly. "Ponto, senor," he returned, "in as good as gold. He, too, is brave."

"Will he do as I tell him?" queried the American.

Hernandez bowed. "You tell me, senor, and I tell him. He will obey."

The American turned his back for a moment and Hernandez and Ponto exchanged significant glances.

Ilington turned back to them. "It is agreed," he said, "I will take you on. To have brave men one must take a chance."

Ilington crossed the veranda and entered the living room, from there disappearing through another door. In a moment he was back, apparently empty handed. Once more he seated himself and then drew from the hip pocket of his trousers a thin, oilskin packet sealed with sealing wax. He laid it on the table before him.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I am the owner of the lost isle of Cinnabar. My forefathers held the grant direct from Spain. That lost isle of Cinnabar is a valuable isle. Tradition has it that upon it is located a quicksilver mine—an ancient mine but little worked. My mission is to seek that island, to find it and to claim it for my own."

"Where is this lost island?" queried the Portuguese.

Ilington nodded. "The secret," he returned, "lies within this packet."

In a flash Ponto's hand darted like a black snake across the table to clutch the packet in its grasp. The American, for all his hugeness, was quite as agile as the fat Ponto. He snatched the packet away just as Ponto's fingers touched it.

Ponto's eyes reddened; his face flushed suddenly. He fingered the hilt of his knife and glanced toward Hernandez.

"I will be careful to take small chance with you, friend Ponto," said Ilington. He waved the packet toward Hernandez. "All in good time, senor," he said.

"The important question," went on Ilington, "is this: Who is in possession of the lost isle of Cinnabar? It belongs to me. I have the paper title—at any rate I can obtain it, but whom must we object when we arrive?"

"Leave that to me," said Hernandez. "We shall wipe them off the face of the earth."

A screen door swung open and a native woman gaudily arrayed in green and yellow stripes, her head bound around with a strip of orange-colored linen, slipped through the door leading with her a tiny girl—a child three or four years old.

The child saw Ilington and ran tumultuously toward him, clasping his huge leg with her arms.

"My daughter, gentlemen," said Ilington. "She is all I have. Her mother died when she was born and when I die she will be the heiress to the lost isle of Cinnabar—perhaps the princess of a principality, you know."

Manuela, her native nurse, carried her out into the narrow white and winding street, and together they half ran, half toddled down the hill.

Ilington resumed his own chair and once more exhibited the oilskin packet.

"The contents of this packet—possibly—will indicate the whereabouts of the lost isle of Cinnabar," he said.

"Suppose we take a chance."

"Break the seal, senor," said Hernandez.

Ilington started to obey—but something happened.

warning he slipped aside into a blind alley, and let the crowd slide by like a huge many-colored avalanche. When he joined the crowd again, Hernandez and his Astec ally were ahead of him and not behind.

"To the sea—to the sea!"—the voice of the multitude raised itself in agony. There was but one cry—"to the sea—let me past—make room for me—to the sea—to the sea."

At a crazy little wharf Ilington twined himself and Manuela and the child deftly to one side and let the crowd plunge on.

He scanned the surface of the bay, the fringe of shore. The bay was dotted with small boats, laden to the gunwales. The water was alive with swimmers.

Ilington turned suddenly—at his side stood Hernandez. Ilington shook his head.

"There's not a chance," he said. "Senor Ilington," said Hernandez, "you are indeed fortunate to have tied yourself to me. Always I have something up my sleeve." He jerked his head. "Follow me," he added.

Ilington, wondering, followed, dragging Manuela with him.

Swiftly the group moved along the water front—they fought their way inch by inch. Suddenly Hernandez darted out upon another wharf.

"Stand in a circle," he commanded, "and when I say the word—quick action, senor."

Then Hernandez stooped quickly and jerked back a trap door that had been fitted into the plank.

"Quick," he whispered, "drop."

He seized Manuela and dropped her through the opening. She screamed—this scream rose to a shriek when she struck the water. But her alarm was unwarranted. There was no danger—she stood waist-deep in water. Ponto followed with a leap—he knew his ground. Ilington lowered himself warily, to save Annette from injury; clinging for one instant to the edge of the opening with one brawny hand, and then dropped straight as a plummet.

Hernandez followed suit, closing the trap door behind him. The closing of this door left them almost in total darkness.

"Senor," whispered Hernandez, "I have a boat. One moment, please."

He groped about and caught a rope tied to a pile. He drew it in, hand over hand.

"In," said Hernandez—"everybody in."

The group obeyed. The boat was small.

"Senor," said Hernandez, "you are large—you are tall. See yonder ray of light—it is an opening, just wide enough to admit of this small craft. Leap out, senor—draw us thither—it is the sole way to the sea."

Ilington dragged the boat through the narrow opening and swung back into his place.

"I'll row," he said.

Suddenly Hernandez pointed toward the north. "Look, senor," he exclaimed, "scur—yonder is salvation."

Ilington followed his glance. His face lighted.

"Salvation is right," he returned in tones of relief, "a steamer—and, what's more, she flies the American flag. Good luck."

Under the command of her captain, Hardin, the Princess had steamed back into the rain of living fire to rescue whom she might.

On the forward deck of the steamer stood Captain Hardin—and beside him his small son—to welcome refugees. And there were many refugees to welcome. Captain Hardin soon saw he must discriminate.

Finally he shook his head. "Ben," he told his mate, "we're filling up. Pick your crowd from now on—only the helpless—children, women, old men. Reject all others."

Welcher, with two of the crew behind him—both scared into a frenzy—armed with capstan bars—raised aloft his bludgeon.

"No more—no more!" he cried. "I'll brain the first man who tries to get aboard."

Suddenly above the din, a powerful voice was heard.

"Ahey, there, Princess," cried this voice.

Welcher followed the sound. It came from the lungs of a powerfully built man rowing a leaky boat.

"Make way there," bellowed the carman. Ilington, "one moment, Princess. Where's the captain?"

Ilington seized his little daughter Annette and uncovered her head.

"Never mind me," he said. "I want refuge for this woman and the child."

Ponto's Eyes Reddened; His Face Flushed Suddenly. He Fingered the Hilt of His Knife and Glanced Toward Hernandez.

native woman out upon the ladder. "Courage, Manuela," he kept whispering; "courage, Annette. They've got to help you out."

Captain Hardin leaned over the side. "Let the woman and child come aboard," he shouted; "back there, men back. Welcher, let them come aboard."

"Ah-h-h," cried Ilington in a tone of relief. With a final almost superhuman effort he lifted Manuela to the rail of the Princess, safely aboard. He was about to pass the child to her, but young Neal Hardin was holding out his arms.

"I'm a good catch," said young Neal; "put it there."

Ilington glanced for one instant into the frank face of Neal Hardin and the captain of the ship. He drew a sigh of relief. He nodded swiftly.

"Whatever happens, thank God she is in good hands," he said.

Captain Hardin put his lips to his megaphone.

"Put her about there," he shouted out; "full steam ahead."

Even as he said it there was a fresh shower of huge red clinders; some ash—some in molten state. There was an added cry of agony from shore and sea. Even the refugees aboard the ship covered under the hail of fire in terror. Suddenly at the captain's side Manuela, the native woman, uttered a gasp.

A red-hot clinder of unusual size had smitten her over the temple as she crouched low over little Annette Ilington. Clutching the captain by the arm she fell prone upon the deck.

Young Neal Hardin sprang forward and caught the child before she fell.

Manuela's breath came fast—the thinnest portion of her skull had been pierced by the jagged edges of the clinder. "Wild-eyed and frantic, but well realizing that she was upon the point of death, she caught young Neal by the blouse."

"I die—your take baby—some day papa come—very—rich—"

She said no more. The captain bent over her, rose and glanced at Welcher significantly. Then he turned to his young son Neal.

"Take the little girl into our cabin, Neal," he said. "Give her to your mother."

Neal clutched the warm bundle in his arms and staggered with it aft.

As Mrs. Hardin unwound the shawl something dropped clinking to the cabin floor. Neal seized it and handed it to his mother.

"It's a bag of gold," he said.

No sooner had he said it than another object fluttered to the floor—an oilskin packet sealed with sealing wax. Mrs. Hardin placed the two upon a small stand set into the side wall of the cabin. She continued to unwind the shawl. Again they started. Planned to the child's dress was a crumpled piece of paper, and upon the piece of paper was a hastily pencilled scrawl. Mrs. Hardin read it. This is what it said:

"I am Annette Ilington, heiress of the lost isle of Cinnabar. I will be very rich some day. Save my clothes and the oilskin packet until my father comes for me or until I am eighteen. I must look out for a man with a saber cut upon his face. For God's sake keep me safe."

CHAPTER IV.

After a Night of Fear.

The three men—Ilington and his two companions—sat dejected in their badly leaking boat and watched Captain Hardin's vessel fade away into the distance. Hernandez watched her keenly as she disappeared. Into the innermost recesses of his mind he tucked away the fact that she was the steamer Princess of New York. Some day that knowledge would be of use to him. Hot ashes brushed against Ilington's cheek; some rested on his shoulders. He shook himself like some huge mastiff. He seized the oars.

"Come," he said, "we've got to get out of this—and right away. This boat is filling fast."

"Go to it, senor," said Hernandez. "Row."

It was not a request; it was a command. It was a strange thing that as long as Ilington had borne the child in his arms, Ilington had been the leader of the three. Now his independence seemed to leave him.

He reached the beach and darted zigzag hither and thither, always babbling, always cackling.

There was reason for this. Somewhere in his skull there was a dent—a deep depression—made by the billet of wood that had struck him down. Ever and anon as he went he stroked the wound with the right hand and drew the hand away, covered with blood.

"Red—red—" he babbled and went on.

CHAPTER V.

A Night With Flame.

Young Neal Hardin was proud of his father's boat, the Princess. He never ceased admiring her. There was no part of her he didn't love. He was well assured that she must hold the same fascination for other people as she did for him. He concluded that little Annette Ilington would fall desperately in love with his huge boat and he escorted that young lady to all parts of the vessel—in fact, he walked her little legs off.

They explored the lifeboats, the forward quarters of the crew; they visited the pilot; they climbed the bridge. Finally, they visited the hold. It was well they did.

Something had happened—and had happened on the day before while the Princess lay off Martinique. Cinders had fallen by the hundreds—a condition of affairs that the captain and his crew had well prepared for. It was impossible to be everywhere at once and a clinder—a live, red messenger of death—had taken advantage of this condition of affairs, had wormed its way unnoted into the cotton cargo, and like a red-hot cancer had eaten into it with flame.

With just the slightest trace of excitement Neal drew the little girl to the deck and with her at his side sought and found his father and whispered to him.

The captain stiffened as with shock; his face turned pale. He held up a hand and three members of the crew rushed to him. He gave hastily, whispered orders.

In ten minutes the fire hose was laid out—men were working at the pumps. But in ten minutes something else had happened—the hold was filled with smoke. Huge tongues of flame were leaping heavenward, and in that same ten minutes panic look command—pandemonium reigned.

"Abandon ship," Hardin cried. "All hands to the boats! Women and children first."

Two days later a host of half-starved refugees parched with thirst, chilled by the cold night and baked by the heat of day, were sighted by a cruiser of the navy. Half an hour afterwards its exhausted passengers clambered wearily but gratefully up the cruiser's side.

The last of the refugees to leave the lifeboat and last of all save the lifeboat's crew to reach the cruiser's deck was young Neal Hardin. Clutching in his arms was the reelin' sleeping figure of little Annette Ilington.

Mrs. Hardin was offered the commander's cabin. She accepted with gratitude. She tucked Annette Ilington and Joey Welcher into their berths, but when she came to look for Neal, her young son, she found him missing. She searched for him. A seaman touched her on the arm.

"You'll find him there, ma'am," said the sailor.

He pointed toward a group in a corner of the sleeping deck. The crew were swinging hammocks ready for the night. Mrs. Hardin listened. She heard the clear tones of her young son Neal. She hastened to the group and caught her offspring by the hand.

"Mom," he pleaded, "don't." He pointed toward a hammock high above his head. "That's where I'm going to sleep—just once—tonight."

A seaman touched his cap and grinned. "He's a sailor from the ground up, ma'am," he said. "You can't make him anything else if you was to try a hundred years."

All through that long night a woman lay, wide-eyed, with dumb agony within her heart. She didn't know—she couldn't know—that Capt. John Hardin was exploring the depths unknown with a knife sunk between his shoulder blades by his mate, Welcher. But she knew that she would never lay eyes upon him more—never feel the clasp of his hand, nor his kiss upon her lips, nor his strong arms about her—never in this world again.

SOCIALISTS TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

The fundamental problems of international peace and of unemployment in their relation to Socialism will be discussed at the Conference of the International Socialist Society, to be held at Hampton, N. H., Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 4th, 5th and 6th. The Conference is attracting wide attention and large numbers of members and friends of the I. S. S. are planning to be present.

The first session will be held in the attractive garden of the Whittier Guest House near Hampton on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 when Rose Pastor Stokes and others will lead a question box on Socialism. John Spargo, the well known authority on Socialism and James Mackaye, author of "The Economy of Happiness," will deal with "Modern Socialism—Ideals and Tactics" on Saturday evening at the Town Hall, Hampton.

Sunday afternoon will be devoted to a discussion of the "Ethics of Socialism," led by Professor Vida D. Scudder, Wellesley, and John Spargo. On Sunday evening, "Socialism and Peace" will be the topic under discussion. Professor Ellen Hayes of Wellesley, Dr. Jessie W. Hughes, author of "American Socialism of the Present Day," and William English Walling, author of "The Socialists and the War," etc., will speak from different standpoints.

The whole question of the necessity for preparation for war and peace will be discussed Monday morning by Charlotte Perkins Gilman, the well known lecturer and writer, Professor Charles Zuehlke, Senator Henry LaFontaine of Belgium, Dr. George W. Nasmith of the World Peace Foundation and J. C. Phelps Stokes, president of the I. S. S.

"The Socialist Remedy for Unemployment" will be the subject for Monday afternoon's meeting. The speakers will be Florence Kelley, Juliet S. Paynter, Dr. L. M. Robinson and Mrs. Louise Van Anten Frank. A luncheon at Hampton Beach and some outdoor speaking and singing will be held at the concluding session of the Conference.

The public is invited to attend the Town Hall meetings on Saturday and Sunday evenings at 7:30. Admission these evenings is free.

War on the Toothbrush.

Amusing, or firesome, according to the mood or mental makeup of those before whom their outgivings are laid, are the teachings and claims of alleged scientists in the field of sanitation and health. So much attention has been given to this subject in the last few years that there have been developed theories and theorists in numbers that would be overwhelming had not the majority of the people become callous to the bugaboos that are constantly being trotted out by these self-appointed guardians of the public health.

According to a dispatch from San Francisco one of the latest and most formidable enemies of the public health is to be found in the toothbrush, which from time immemorial has been regarded by people of correct personal habits as one of the foremost of all simple aids to health. Sensible parents and thoughtful school teachers have impressed upon the children under their charge the propriety and utility of the regular use of the toothbrush, only to have it brought to the front at this late day that the toothbrush is "unhygienic and a menace to the well-being of the user."

It is announced that arguments in support of this contention are to be presented at the Panama-Pacific Dental Congress which has just been opened at San Francisco. The indictment against the toothbrush was brought by a New Jersey physician, who places it in the hygienic scale but little higher than the broom and the street sweeper. It is given a high place as a germ disseminator and branded as a foe to the health of all who use it.

It is proper to hear the arguments for and against any proposition before rendering judgment, but it will take very strong arguments and indisputable proof to convince the public that the toothbrush is not highly conducive to health, rather than a menace. There are those who maintain that bathing is an unhealthful practice. Those who believe this may be ready to forego the cleaning of the teeth, but there is little prospect that the toothbrush will be discarded yet awhile, no matter what the verdict of this "Dental Congress" may be.

It sometimes seems as if the discoverers and reformers were trying to see how foolish they can be. And it must be admitted that some of them achieve a success that is nothing short of astounding.

In view of the testimony given by proprietors of entertainment resorts in cases of "discrimination against the uniform," the solicitude of the navy and a certain portion of the public as to the moral character of recruits is touching. There is no quarter for a judge who gives a young offender a chance to escape jail by enlisting in the navy; no matter how comparatively trivial the offense may have been. Reports of hazings and examination frauds at Annapolis show that the moral standards of midshipmen must be kept free from contamination at all hazards, do they not?

The Pennsylvania railroad is ready to do its share toward preparing the country for defense by giving each of its employees a month's vacation for military training. As there are 100,000 men on the company's payroll it will mean something if all of them avail themselves of this opportunity.

Is Berkley, Cal., trying to raise police duty to the dignity of a profession? It is reported that its policemen have been requested to take a course at the state university. No wonder ex-President Taft says California is conducting a social and political "clinical laboratory."

Bad weather has shrunk the Kansas wheat crop to some extent, but in spite of all drawbacks the "bleeding" state is expected to turn out something like 100,000,000 bushels. At present prices for this staple there should be no hard times in Kansas.

Peanuts are being used as cattle feed in Europe. In this country they are little used in that way, though occasionally lovers of delicacies in the South fatten a "razor-back" hog on them.

The toadstool continues its deadly work at a rate which shows that many who consider themselves experts do not know as much about mushrooms as they think they do.

Some of the men in training at Plattsburg have found poison ivy more trying than mimic warfare.

August made a rather chilly departure. Taken all in all, it has been a queer summer.

CURRENT OPINION

Middle Classes of Europe Will Seek Here the Freedom Denied at Home.

The war teaches us also that it is much better for us to rely a great deal more on our home industries than we have been heretofore doing.

Our manufacturers need greater encouragement and help; so do our producers.

This war will also operate to our benefit by bringing to us after it closes a very large number of what may be called the middle classes in Europe, those who are not extremely poor and those who are not very wealthy; the people who will labor for their own support, who are well educated and quite well informed as to the powers, influences and dangers that can be brought on them from mismanaged government.

These people will not come to us as paupers; they will not come to us as illiterates, but will come to us seeking a government which will give them protection and where they will have full liberty and surroundings for their intelligence, their industry and the small capital they may possess.—By Senator Thomas B. Catron of New Mexico.

Miss French Tells Them the Career is Full of Heartaches and Bitter Disappointments. Says Think Carefully Study and Watch the Best Actors to Succeed.

Adelaide French, who heads the cast of the new George Broadhurst play, "The Law of the Land," which comes to the Portsmouth Theatre Thursday, Sept. 9, has written the following letter to stage struck girls:

"Your letter has reached me. To the beginner, I suggest careful thought before entering an already over-crowded profession which, at its best, is full of heartaches and disappointments. As to the moral side, there may be more temptations, but the girl who goes down under them would do so in any other walk of life. A girl who has no home to go to during the off season and no income sufficient for her needs during that time, should attempt to go on the stage.

"It is uncertain work and the salaries paid to beginners are small. The money earned the first few years will scarcely pay for one's wardrobe. But having decided firmly that you must enter our ranks, find a good stock company with an experienced stage director. Personally I do not approve of schools of acting and play parts. Acting can be learned by experience only.

"Every accomplishment and grace one possesses is of value on the stage. The most important quality of all is a clear enunciation. Many an otherwise good actor or actress is ruined by a provincial accent. Find a standard of pure English. Watch and listen to our best actors. There is no accent in the voice of Forbes Robertson or of Miss Julia Marlowe. Go to the theatre all you can. You can even learn from bad acting what to avoid. Study dancing, fencing etc.

"I have referred to this as an over-crowded profession. There is none more so. The competition is heart-breaking. I advise almost any girl not to go on; but then there are some who have the call so strong that it will not be denied. If you are one of these, of course you are bound to go on in spite of my prudent warning."

CAUGHT IN UNDERTOW AT YORK HARBOR

Miss Agnes Elwood, Employed as a Maid, Loses Life While in Bathing.

Miss Agnes Elwood, a maid in the employ of Mrs. George H. Cook of Baltimore, a summer resident at York Harbor, was drowned while in bathing on Friday afternoon at the Marshall House bathing beach. The young woman ventured beyond her depth and was carried out to sea by the strong undertow which prevailed. The body was shortly afterwards recovered. The unfortunate woman was about 28 years old and belonged in Baltimore where the body will be sent for service and burial.

Wants Appropriation
Congressman Peter F. Taggart has petitioned Secretary of the Navy Daniels for an appropriation to put the Charlestown navy yard in readiness for the construction of submarines. "The Charlestown navy yard has two ways on which the construction of four submarines can be undertaken at one time," said the congressman. "The ways can be put into readiness at a maximum outlay of $50,000."

PEOPLES' OPINION

Nothing to be Ashamed of Editor:

As an outsider, I had the pleasure of watching the work of the several hand-tub crews at the Marblehead muster, and I wish to state that the Portsmouth veterans have nothing to be ashamed of. Had it been possible to keep the steam on the paper against a strong wind, they certainly would have won against all odds. They had the men, had the machine, and if an act of nature prevented them from winning, why all this howl about their defeat, and the recommendation that they put relief valves on the machine to avoid vacuum, and get new men.

The hand-tub barrels are recognized as the best machine in the league and her crew are second to none. The best of them meet defeat at times and the Portsmouth boys have to take it with the rest.

DUPONT GILLIGAN

AT THE PORTSMOUTH THEATRE.

Portsmouth will have a chance to see at the same time as the Boston and New York public the great photo-serial drama, "Sea of the Navy," now playing all the big Boston vaudeville houses, including Gordon's Olympia.

As an added attraction, starting Labor Day, "The Goddess," another photo serial with Earle Williams and Anita Stewart, will be offered. This is in addition to the regular program.

Vaudeville bill:
"Great Von Dell"—An impersonation of all the great musical artists of the world. Highest priced single act playing this section of New England. He was the hit of the bill at Keith's Palace Theatre, Manchester.

"Richards and Thatcher"—Man and woman in a polite plianologue. Act replete with comedy.

"Famous Symphony Quartette," with comedy singing and talking. Four very clever men with a battery full of funny songs and sayings.

Bill entirely away from the stiffest, stereotyped, so-called musical acts.

The crowded condition of The Herald's advertising columns today necessitated the leaving out of much valuable matter.

MONEY FOR EMERGENCIES

Money is never appreciated quite so much as in the case of an emergency. The ability to go to the bank and draw the amount needed relieves the situation immeasurably.

Humiliation, inconvenience and anxiety are suffered by those who do not save part of their earnings and deposit them with a strong institution such as this bank. One Dollar will do for a start.

NEW LICENSES BY EXCISE BOARD

Hotel licenses were issued Friday by the excise commission to Charles W. Gray of Gray's Inn in Jackson and to Almon Trafton of Trafton's Inn in Berlin. The hotel license at Alstead was transferred. Interest was lent to the Trafton Inn application, at the time of filing, inasmuch as it marked the first appearance of former Chairman Edmund Sullivan of Berlin, before the present board in the capacity of a solicitor. Mr. Sullivan represented Mr. Trafton.

"THE GODDESS"

When you read the story the pleasure possible of attainment in "The Goddess" is only half possessed. Would you see Celestia, draped, inspired, innocent in all the situations Gouverneur Morris has so fascinatingly sketched?

Your imagination cannot embody "The Goddess" herself in near the beautiful given her by Anita Stewart. The scenery of Celestia's "Heaven" has been transformed by the Vitaphone organization into the most surpassingly lovely motion picture ever shown. See the pictures at the Portsmouth Theatre, on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 6 and 7.

The Biggest Fair Ever Held in Rockingham County

The Portsmouth Fair

Starting Labor Day, Continuing Tuesday and Wednesday

PORTSMOUTH FAIR OPENS LABOR DAY

Big Merry-go-Round and Midway Features for First Annual Fair.

Monday marks the opening of the first annual Portsmouth Fair at the Portsmouth Fair Grounds. It is the intention and the determination of the officers and directors of the Southern New Hampshire Agricultural and Fair Association to present something in the nature of a "county fair" that will be second to none in this part of the country.

Everything is ready from the gate arrangements to the last feature of the fair which takes place on Wednesday afternoon. A new attraction lately added to the others is the big Merry-go-round which is said to be one of the finest ever built.

The opening exercises take place in the morning and the address will be made by the Hon. Harry B. Yeaton, Mayor of the city. There are band concerts during the entire afternoon and evening of each day, a horse show at 2:00 o'clock each day, with some of the finest horses that New England can produce. Every afternoon at 2:15 o'clock the horse races will be started. At 3:00 o'clock every afternoon there is a balloon ascension and parachute jump, scheduled, one of the highest priced balloon artists having been engaged for this feature.

The Midway Features which have been engaged and given permission to show here will include many new exhibits for the amusement of the patrons. This is always one of the biggest drawing cards at a fair and the officers of the association are very positive in their statement that this Portsmouth Fair will have the "best" the business affords.

Wednesday will be "Children's Day," a feature never before attempted by an agricultural association. In the morning from 10:00 o'clock until 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon, the children's athletic sports will be held. They will include the following:

50-yard dash for girls.
75-yard dash for boys under 100 pounds.

Tug-of-War for teams from Grades 10-12 dash for boys (open)
Shuttle relay race for girls from Grades 10-12.

Potato race for boys under 100 pounds.
Sack race for boys under 100 pounds.
Sack race for girls under 100 pounds.
Potato race for girls.

Shuttle race for boys over 100 pounds.

Shuttle race for boys under 100 pounds.
Three-legged race for boys (open). Prizes for winners.

At 1:00 o'clock there will be an exhibition of the playground work, group games, basket ball, bean bags, and others, things that the city has been doing for the little ones of the city that more than 75 per cent of the residents of Portsmouth have no knowledge of.

The premium list for the different exhibits are very large, including ribbons, cash prizes, cups, and others. The Noone Silver Cup will be awarded for the best cow of any breed exhibited in the cattle show which takes place on Tuesday afternoon. The list of entries are very large in this division of the fair.

It might not be out of place for the publishing of the object of the association at this time, in order that the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity may know what these men are trying to accomplish by their work.

The Southern New Hampshire Agricultural Association Incorporated

Organized for the promotion and encouragement of the Agriculture and Live Stock Industries through the holding of exhibitions, including the exhibit of all lines of Art Industry and Science incident thereto, whereby exchange of ideas and healthy competition will best promote the interests of the communities served.

Tug o'War
As an added feature for Monday, the opening day, the officers announced last evening that the association would present a tug to go to the winner of a Tug o'War to be pulled between any two teams in the city. It is hoped by the officers that two of the brewery teams will accept this offer.

"MIKE" NEWTON WINS THE CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

Mulholland Secures Second Place in Boys' Tennis Tournament.

Because of the bad weather which has prevailed all summer the tennis tournament at the playground was unable to be finished until this week. Tuesday afternoon, Simpson won from Lawrence David and was in turn beaten by Ted Butler. Butler was matched with Mike Newton, and was defeated in the fastest sets of the season, 6-1, 5-6, 6-0. Mulholland was the only one left to face Newton and the latter won handily in two straight sets, 6-0, 6-1. "Mike" is without doubt one of the best tennis players in this part of the state for his age. Although he does not possess an exceptionally strong service, however he makes up for this by his wonderful defensive play and his natural ability to place his returns just where the other fellow isn't. The prize for the championship is a beautifully engraved silver cup donated by a professional man of this city, while a tennis racquet, given by a prominent business man will go to Mulholland for second prize.

THE HERALD HEARS

That several applications for licenses were received by the excise board at Concord on Friday.

That two of them were for saloons at Nashua.

That the Boston and Maine will cancel a large number of freights on Labor Day.

That a large number of churches will observe Labor Sunday tomorrow and the ministers will give sermons on Labor.

That the oil sprinkled on the streets of this city every year is money wasted.

That it is the cheapest on the market and keeps the dust down about a month.

That a well known wine clerk denies that he has taken the count for Dan Cupid's darts.

That the navy yard people who pass along Daniel street each day have a lot of nice things to say as to the condition of the street.

That a well known resident of Broad street has recently purchased a very valuable cow.

That she certainly ordered some hay for the animal.

That when the supposed dry fodder arrived it proved to be excellent.

That she told the driver who attempted to deliver the curled shreds of wood where to get off.

That the Boston navy yard now wants to build submarines.

That it will cost over $50,000 to put the ways there in readiness for such work.

That the Portsmouth yard can take the job of constructing three boats of this type without any expense of getting ready.

That Manchester cigar makers are out for more pay.

That the laborers on the new state road near Massachusetts are on a strike.

That they want $2.25 per day and a change in bosses.

That every one of them refused to continue on the job.

That today is the big day at Greenacre.

That a very interesting program is on for both day and evening.

That there will be plenty of amusement in and about this city on Labor Day.

That there appears to be more controversy about the defeat of the handball bracket at Marblehead than there is about the Mexican situation.

That if Mayor Yeaton and the Board of Public Works want to do something for suffering people they will make an effort to get some oil or water on Daniel street.

That it is about time that some of the many people that have been inspecting the paper making plant at Freeman's Point were heard from.

That the Board of Trade of Lynn have succeeded in having nearly a dozen passenger trains of the Boston and Maine stop at the station there, which for years went through that city flying.

That "The Law of the Land" at the Portsmouth Theatre on Thursday evening next will be greeted by a full house.

That not a craft of any kind is tied up at the railroad coal docks at the North End.

That the bug-of-war and the foot-and additional service if required. Plans have been made to take care of any extra travel by extra cars.

ball game scheduled for Monday at Grand's Grove is causing a lot of interest.

That the summer arrived away behind schedule.

VISIT NAVY YARD.

Chairman of Maryland National Defense League Here.

Francis M. Jenks of Baltimore, accompanied by his secretary are now in this city in the interest of the National Defense League, where they are meeting many local people on the matter that is at present stirring the country. Mr. Jenks is the chairman of Maryland League and will tour the state of New Hampshire in the interest of the organization. Today he visited the navy yard and army reservation at New Castle and held long conferences with the officers of both branches of Uncle Sam's service. He expressed himself as much pleased with the excellent naval station and the army reservation in the Portsmouth Coast Artillery District.

POLICE COURT.

Patrick T. Horgan, a stranger, charged with peddling without a license was found guilty in the municipal court today and paid a fine of $20 and costs.

Enoch Williams, colored, charged with assault on Mrs. Ethel Kroon pleaded not guilty. The case grew out of some words between them, where Williams is employed, and the woman claimed that he pushed her out of the door. Williams denied the charge and the testimony offered by the woman was not sufficient to hold him. Judge Guphill dismissed the case.

C. E. WOODS HAS RECEIVED THE FIRST 1916 CADILLAC '8'

A party of five went to Portland last Thursday with Charles E. Woods and got a 1916 Cadillac '8'. This is the first one received by the local agent. It certainly is some car. Mechanically it has not changed from the 1915, but many small details and improvements have been added, making it in a class of its own. Already they are hard to get as the Cadillac factory cannot make them fast enough to meet the demand.

MURPHY & DELMAR—Comedy Singing and Talking

THE GRAY TRIO--In Act Superior. Three of the Best Known People in Vaudeville

Pictures for Saturday, Sept. 4

"His Birthday Gift"

Biograph Comedy Drama. His sweetheart is an idle vain creature, but for a time she is successful for leading him to believe that she shares his idea regarding woman's work in the world. Augusta Anderson featured.

"The Fable of the Tip and the Treasure"

Another one of those funny George Ade pictures with a moral on the end.

"The Wardrobe Woman"

Vitagraph Drama. The wardrobe lady's wisdom and fearlessness save a young girl from the clutches of a human culture. An all-star cast of Vitagraph players.

"The Rakoon Hose Company"

"A One-Reel Feature"

These are two Lubin comedies on the same reel. The latter a cartoon picture.

"Her Return"

S. & A. Drama. A fine picture featuring G. M. Anderson and Marguerite Clayton.

BIG PICTURES COMING TO THE "PORTSMOUTH"

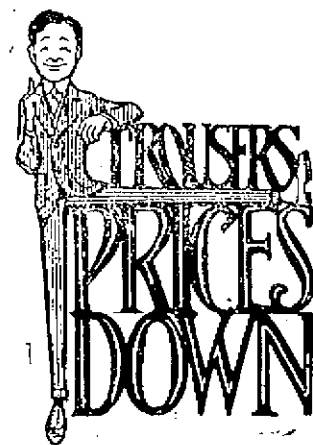

In speaking about the immediate future policy of the Portsmouth Theatre, Mr. Hartford, manager of the popular play-house announced last evening that the new serial, "Neal of the Navy" was booked and would be shown here soon. Another big feature serial that is going to be produced here is "The Goddess," "Neal of the Navy," by the same people, is admitted by the big film men to be the best and the most costly motion picture production ever made. The story of the play is new and it is said to be one of the most reasonable as well as interesting picture plays yet built. Both "The Goddess" and "Neal of the Navy" are playing to big houses every where in the east and will prove to be the greatest that have come to this city.

This evening will be the last opportunity the Portsmouth theatre patrons will have for seeing the big vaudeville row playing at this house. The show this week is fine, the Gray Trio being one of the highest class musical acts that the management has killed here. The singing of these three artists, two women and one man, is worth going to hear more than once and the work of one of the ladies in her "planologue" is clever and entertaining in the way it is performed, and in its originality. Last evening Mr. Gray's song, telling of the possibility of the building up of a Merchant Marine in this country was very well received.

Mark Linder and Company in their sketch, "The Wager," are pressing a new idea showing the interior of a big prison that is very fine. The act was appreciated as the five actors in the cast portrayed their parts to perfection. Mr. Linder, who takes the parts of the different convicts, had an opportunity to show his great versatility.

Murphy and Delmar presented a good comedy and singing number that went very well.

Grand musical entertainment at the Salvation Army, Labor Day at 8 p. m. Silver offering at the door.

We have made our annual mark-down of summer trousers. The "cut prices" are $2.45, $2.65, $3.45. Under these prices is grouped our entire stock of medium and high grade seasonable and stylish trousers and a look at them will convince you that among them there are "some" bargains.

GOV. BOYLE OF NEVADA GIVES HIS PROOF

"I have been an observer of equal suffrage in adjoining Western States where, after a trial of the system covering years, no one seriously considers a return to the old order of things. Men are more numerous than women here and there is no place in the world where women are held in higher respect than in the West. * * * Women themselves have embraced the right to a voice in public affairs in such a manner as to disprove effectively the silly arguments that they could not use this voice without a sacrifice of their womanly qualities."
